Kevin Robb Studios is the creative business behind Kevin Robb, a nationally recognized and internationally collected sculptor known for contemporary, modern stainless steel designs that resonate with a broad audience. His work ranges from large-scale public art installations to garden sculptures and intimate interior pieces, each reflecting a distinctive artistic vision and exceptional craftsmanship.

Description The business is operated by Kevin's wife, Diane Robb, who brings both academic and professional expertise to the studio. She holds a business degree from Regis University and a graduate degree from the University of Denver. Diane oversees the studio's marketing, contracting, and day-to-day operations, drawing on more than 15 years of experience guiding projects from concept through manufacturing and installation. Her leadership ensures that each commission—whether monumental public art or a smaller private work—is managed with professionalism, precision, and care.
